. . . Best Film . . . I was sorry to see . . . Best Film . . . Best Director. Carter and his wife and son are on vacation. They take a cruise to Greece, where Carter is relaxing on a beach when he sees a photo of his wife with some other guy. During the cruise, Carter gets over his anger and his guilt over his wife's infidelity, and he and his wife reconcile. During their stay, Carter notices that the other man is following him everywhere he goes. Carter finds out that his wife and this other man are on the same cruise, and that he is their tour guide. As it turns out, this other man is an American agent named Cole Freeman, who is on vacation with his family. Carter and his wife develop a close friendship, and they develop feelings for each other. Carter is later sent home to the States by his wife, and he is in a place of limbo, as he is not home, but he is not with his wife and son. He is finally sent home, and he is happy to be back with his family. The film is about a man trying to find his way back home after finding out that his wife has been unfaithful to him. The setting for the film is on a cruise ship in Greece. This film received five nominations, winning two, including the award for Best Picture. This was the first film that I ever saw with Swayze in it, and I saw it when I was nine years old. It was one of the only films I saw that I wasn't nervous to watch. While I was still in high school, I saw this in the cinema when I was going to see a preview of Bad Boys 2. I was surprised that there was a sequel to this film, and I looked up the name and thought I'd seen it before. I was wrong. The film had been out for years, and it had been remade in Korea, so I guess I was not the only one who was unaware of the film's existence. MoreRush Hour (2002) - Director - Tony ScottI was impressed with this film because it brought back some of the fun I had with the first film. The plot of the film is about Carter and his wife's vacation time. Carter is relaxing on a beach when he finds out that his wife has been unfaithful.
