Devs dont respond, game unplayable for me because of LOD bugs. Don't buy.. When I first bought this, it was unplayable. Let the developer aware of this problem of the xbox controller not working with the game (or the game didn't work with the controller). So, forgot about it for about a year. I found that it was playable, but sooooooo short! It was enjoyable until you got to the end, thinking that it was going to go on....then credits. That you were forced to watch until it was done. I would say that this game is enjoyable. Just so dissapointed in how short it was. Not to mention, that there is NO info on future chapters. Unless they plan on getting more out there. Don't waste your money.. I really wanted to like the game but it really doesn't live up to the initial expectations you're given: a kind of quirky football management game with sims-like qualities and the extra ability to manage your team's extracurricular activites.

The post-training gameplay was probably the most disapointing and really felt ultimately meaningless. The games were surprisingly fun to watch but... I could just watch a real game. Maybe I'll try it again later, but 4 hours is enough for now.. awesome rubber ducky. I'm sorry but I can't get my DualShock4 (via DS4Windows) to work in this game, minus the X button, which resets my quad. Unplayable in its current state.

To consider:

1. Bought the game because people said it resembles Black & White.
2. While it has a bunch of snowballs and constant restarting missions due to simple player error, it doesn't lack as a complete game. If this game was released 10 years ago it would have been very well received.
3. If the developers decide to evolve the game and continue as a franchise, a The Mims 2 could be well on the way to become this generation's god game.

Worth buying.

After finishing the main story: definitely waiting for a sequel.. Don't even be tempted to try this game. If you like racers, you'll loathe this. If you hate racers, then keep on walking.

The controls and car destruction physics are about the only decent parts. You can continue turning corners after being launched into the air - I don't mean you can turn the car, I mean you will continue along the track and have handling only slightly worse than whilst on the road. There are three weapons, only one of which is actually any use, and unless you master the wobbly physics quickly, get ready to replay the first four races over and over again.. It's a fun little neat game. Everything that was advertised: goofy, over-the-top, gory slow motion fun. Although I would wait for sales, as I would judge the game is worth anywhere from $5-$10.. Excellent arcade puzzling gameplay! Played through the Arcade Mode (aka Story Mode) on Easy quickly, but the higher difficulties really step it up for a tense challenge. Each character has a very different feel, especially in different matchups. The only con is the mechanics of sending stuff to the opponent are not super clear (if you're not familiar with Puzzle Fighter) and there is no manual, but it's not necessary to understand the details to smash some robo puzzles. Excellent graphics, excellent gameplay, buy this and fight me!. This is by no means a in depth review of the pack only a basic one for now.

PROS -

Fantastic skins on all of the locos, many different variations included in the pack.

A large variety of headboards included with the 42 only.

Working doors and windows on the 42 and 35.

Independently controlled cab lights in the 42 using the switches on the back wall of the cab and independently controlled white light, red light and route indicator panel lights on the 42.

High level of detail in all of the cabs.

CONS -

Getting a certain name and number configuration to appear in game for the 52 and 42 is quite difficult. I would of liked to see a list of the letters to put in the box in the scenario editor to know what letter was associated with that name rather than trying the whole alphabet.

The coaches included in the pack are very shiny, I know there only coaches but like others say, they look like they've been varnished more than once.

I would of liked the headboards to been included with every loco in the pack.

That's all that I've found in the day of playing with this pack but if I find anything else I will add it on.

Overall I would give this pack a 9 out of 10.. Love the stories, love the idea, wish it had more meat, but for what it is, it is glorious!. One of my favourite Party games to this date.
